No more complications with the button being pressed accidentally.. The . Adafruit CircuitPython Library | Adafruit CircuitPython USB Development Board | Build Log. Peter Jensen. AVRDUDE not reading most AVR chips. When I switch to the AVRprog folder, it gives me this error: avrprog v.1.40 not reading most AVR chips. Upgrade your version of Python to . Question How can I downgrade to 1.4.2 from 1.4.4 Note that the users of the AVRprog library have also run into similar issues downgrading from 1.4.4 to 1.4.3. A: The actual issue can be resolved by just following these steps. Copy the avrprog.py file from here into the directory where avrdude was already copied. Right click on avrdude and select properties to see the location of the avrdude binary file. Go to your avrdude.conf file and add the path of avrprog.py file to the folder location where the binary is being searched for (in my case the folder is \Software\Arduino\hardware\arduino\avr\libraries\avrprog\avrprog, for example I use this location: \Software\Arduino\hardware\arduino\avr\libraries\avrprog\avrprog\avrdude.conf Now to compile the avrprog.py file, do this: Open C:\Users\username\AppData\Roaming\arduino15\packages\avrprog\1.4.4\avrprog.py in notepad Paste the python code that you want to compile. (Don't forget to do a CTRL+V). Now go to the directory of the script you want to compile, then run: C:\Users\username\AppData\Roaming\arduino15\packages\avrprog\1.4.4\avrprog.py -DCHIP_ID=ATmega328p -DARDUINO=106 Download and installation instructions will now appear.
