I am trying to fetch rows from one table and joining them with the same table using an inner join. I need the full name to be displayed. I want to use the Like operator to search on the column I am joining on. SELECT a.columnName, a.fullName, b.columnName, b.fullName FROM Table1 a INNER JOIN Table2 b ON a.columnName LIKE '%' + b.columnName + '%' This fails with: Column names in each selected list must be unique. Column name 'columnName' in SELECT list is specified more than once. If I try to use the WHERE operator I receive: The multi-part identifier "b.columnName" could not be bound. Edit: Table1 has an ID field. Table2 has a rowID field. I need to join the tables and use the ID to get the fullName. How can I make this work? A: You can't. As you've seen, you cannot use a column multiple times in the select clause. You need to use a where clause instead: SELECT a.columnName, a.fullName, b.columnName, b.fullName FROM Table1 a INNER JOIN Table2 b ON a.ID = b.rowID WHERE a.columnName LIKE '%' + b.columnName + '%' You can use a subquery if you want. You can also just use a regular join instead of an inner join, but that is more "bad". If you have to do that, you may
