The solution is simple: Go to Settings Windows: C:\WINDOWS\system32\ Then find %WINDIR%\System32 And delete it. Then restart and you will be able to boot! [MUSIC] I'm Leo, and I'm working with a very, very successful family team here in Minnesota. We do a lot of different programming with different components of the family system, but I really focus on the nutritional piece. And I'm fortunate to have an amazing advocate that really supports me to really bring the nutrition and the health benefits to our clients, to our families. It's the woman that's always in the picture. Always making sure that she's always taken care of. She's the one that's always focused on making sure that she's as healthy as she can be and also a well-n 2d92ce491b
