www.archeopereto.com/GetRixAll.aspx?ID=CO88-3101-acmp .Q: Missing Key Error when using PySerial to read and write to serial port I am trying to read and write data from serial port in python. I have used the same code for writing to serial port for years and I am sure that I have the port and all the correct parameters (115200,8,N,1,N,0) which I have checked with a serial monitor. However, I keep getting a KeyError: "Couldn't parse keys" when I run the code. So far I have been unsuccessful at figuring this out. Any help would be appreciated.

import serial
ser = serial.Serial('COM4',115200,8,1,1,0)
ser.write("QUIT ".encode())
try:
    while True:
        first_phone = str(ser.readline()[1:-1].decode('utf-8'))
        ser.write("COM 4 ".encode())
        ch=ser.readline()
        second_phone = str(ser.readline()[1:-1].decode('utf-8'))
        print(first_phone,second_phone)
except KeyboardInterrupt:
    print("CTRL+c to exit")
ser.close()

The key error occurs on the last line: `first_phone = str(ser.readline()[1:-1].decode('utf-8'))`

A: there was a small typo on the parameter N - this should be d [Construction and characterization of anti-VEGF 166D1 antibody]. To construct anti-VEGF (vascular endothelial growth factor) 166D1 monoclonal antibody. The CDR fragments of the antibody were produced by gene assembly and traditional hybridoma technology. The heavy and light chain genes of anti-VEGF 166D1 monoclonal antibody were cloned into pIgG1 and pIgG3 expression vectors,
