I have a big problem to do and I'm not sure what to do. I have an adjacency matrix with n nodes and m edges. I want to find all 2-cliques and then check if there is an open, non-empty clique. My only idea is to generate a number of connected components from the matrix and to take the number of vertices from the connected components that also have an open non-empty clique. How can this be done? Is there maybe a more efficient approach? A: Generate all sets of size 2 that are either full or empty, and filter out those that are not open. This should work in $O(n^2)$ time.

Oprah's Book Club Exclusive: The Virgin Suicides Oprah's Book Club Exclusive: The Virgin Suicides Oprah Winfrey's long-time book club, The Book Club, recently reviewed The Virgin Suicides by Jeffrey Eugenides. This extraordinary story of teenage suicide set in 1950s Greece was an especially interesting choice for the club. Inspired by interviews with the writer, Oprah herself describes The Virgin Suicides as a "love story that is at once domestic and tragic, and a profound look at a fundamental truth about the capacity of individuals to cause death." The last time Oprah picked a book like this one was last fall, when she read The Kite Runner. A New York Times bestseller, The Virgin Suicides is set in 1950s Greece. The story follows four teenage girls, all upper class, from the summer of 1964. The four girls have recently returned to their childhood hometown of Sparta. They are living the summer of their lives before the horrors of adolescence settle in and the suicides begin. Their lives are brightened by the social circle they have made, their time at the beach and their burgeoning love affairs. As the story unfolds, it is clear that no one is immune to the wave of suicides that has taken hold. In the end, no one is ever able to escape the
