With this screensaver your computer desktop will be a nice a clock - ... may have increased the rate of dural tears. The mean age of our patients was higher than in other studies, which may be explained by the patients' preference for a higher age. Lower rates of dural tears may be explained by the use of $MgSO_4$ in all patients, the maintenance of adequate pneumatization of the frontal sinuses during the endoscopic procedure, and the superior endoscopic viewing due to the use of a high definition system. Limitations of the study {#sec4.2} ----------------------- The small sample size of the study group may not be representative of the entire population. In the present study, the patients were of different ethnicities, which may have influenced the results. Future comparative studies are needed with larger numbers of patients to identify whether ethnic differences are associated with dural tears. Conclusion {#sec4.3} ---------- Intradural $MgSO_4$ injection is a safe and effective method of TFE in patients with postoperative frontal sinus mucoceles; however, it is associated with a higher rate of intracranial complications. The use of the paranasal endoscope in selected cases may facilitate visualization of the $MgSO_4$ injection site and minimize the incidence of dural tears. Ethics approval {#sec4.4} --------------- Ethical approval was obtained from the local ethical committee in the Hamad General Hospital, Doha, Qatar. Reference number 11.73.095. Financial support {#sec4.5} ----------------- Funded by HGH-Qatar. Conflicts of interest {#sec4.6} --------------------- None. [1]: MgSO~4~, Magnesium sulfate. [2]: p Value is significant at
