Crosslinked enzyme aggregates (CLEAs) of Candida rugosa lipase: characterization and immobilization strategies. Candida rugosa lipase was used as an enzyme model to develop a new type of enzyme aggregates, crosslinked enzyme aggregates (CLEAs), by the addition of glutaraldehyde (GA) at various concentrations and different reaction times. The characterization results showed that the CLEAs were composed of a solid matrix with enzyme particles firmly attached to each other by a covalent cross-linking network. Depending on the concentration of GA, the particle size of the CLEAs became smaller with an increase in the amount of GA. The CLEAs were successfully used as a biocatalyst for the synthesis of biodiesel from palm olein in the presence of tri-n-butylphosphate as a co-solvent. Kota Harlan Kota Harlan (born 6 January 1974) is a former Australian rules footballer who played for Fitzroy in the Australian Football League (AFL). Harlan, a ruckman from Western Australia, was selected by Fitzroy at pick 5 in the 1993 Pre-Season Draft. He played 22 matches for Fitzroy in the 1995 AFL season, as a back up for Jason Akermanis who was the team's ruckman. His only major league match was the round 21 win against Melbourne. Harlan left Fitzroy at the end of the season and instead headed to Kalgoorlie-Boulder in the WAFL. Harlan played for the Bears between 1996 and 1999, finishing as the club's leading goal kicker in 1997 and 1998, and represented Western Australia three times. Harlan returned to the AFL in 1999, this time to West Coast where he played 14 AFL games. He also played for Claremont in the WAFL. References External links
